Dorette Jewels in wonderland

Am I really in Paris ? it's a beautiful sunny and raining Friday here in Paris, and more than once this unusual weather made up my mind with the strange idea to be in London instead , but suddenly the amazing atmosphere of the Paris Fashion Week brought me back down again in the French city.

After having spent the whole morning to the Premiere Classe and having had lunch in one of my favorite brasserie in the Marais, I'm here in perfect time to meet Catherine Lévy at her Lab and Atelier.

The soul of Dorette Jewels welcomes me to her magic world of gems, colors, scents and suggestions (see December post on Dorette Jewels) Her deep warm voice wrap me in her bright lab with windows on one of the most lively streets of the 3ème arrondissement and I'm glad to be overwhelmed by her collection of unusual objects apparently propped here and there and by the vintage furniture and the play of light and mirrors,

While she prepares me his Japanese cereal tea, my eyes linger on every single object I can see: this place from the red floor to the green walls has a special charm that brings me to the spirit of India with its memories and suggestions and I'm especially captured by the votive lights , the planted flowers in a small designer jars that for sure are from Tse Tse, Parisian concept that I love indeed.

it seems weird, but I think that this India spirit occurs every time the Magic lingers in a nice encounter or circumstance like this. This unique colors and suggestion certainly come from this magic land that is so present in the Catherine Lévy's life. So much present that at a certain point of her life she decided to leave a well healthy job and join her magic world.

As we sip the second cup of tea, I found myself linger on some rings: her jewels are never trivial and are really pleasant and delicate to wear, I notice she wears some of them, even 4 or 5 on each finger, as they were a mantra.

give rise to emotions , you can find them in selected exclusive store all around the word out of "big channel" that I'm sure she's not interested in: I can guess this from every things belongs to her, starting from her beautiful blu-purple hair and from her dressing made up by selected exclusive colors.

Catherine select the cut- stones in Jaipur.

This stones speak, tell story according to their cut and color. Her brilliant journey started in India were a bit 'by chance, a bit' for fun and a bit 'for herself , she open her first jewelry that had successful bursting among her friendships asking her to make small poems to wear.

born after a few years of creations, trials and bright successes due to the her last forever blossoming flowers that in a few years become a reference point for those who love jewelry from deep soul and now it is one of the favorite concept brand of niche jewelry.

It 's time to say goodbye now, somewhere in the Marais my friend Liliana is waiting for me.

As I'm leaving the lab, last magic moments: Agnès, her co-worker, noting the little trousse dropping out from my bag (yet another one) exclaimed:

"C'est drôle .."

That's why this curious brackets ..
How full of coincidences and encounters life is...
but that's another story ...
